

2014 Anti-Money Laundering & Bank Secrecy Act Compliance School

"We appreciate all you are doing to keep your financial institutions safe from illicit use. However, we will employ all of the tools at our disposal and hold accountable those institutions and individuals who recklessly allow our financial institutions to be vulnerable to terrorist financing, money laundering, proliferation finance, and other illicit financial activity".

Jennifer Shasky Calvery, Director

Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN)
January 30, 2014

- Designing and Implementing a BSA Program
- Completing the Currency Transaction Report (FinCEN Form 112)
- Exempting Eligible Clients from CTR Filing
- Overview of Regulatory and Statutory Components of BSA

- Tools Available to Help Monitor Suspicious Activity
- How OFAC Fits into the Process
- Developing a Risk Assessment

Recent Congressional focus and well-publicized BSA enforcement actions and fines continue to support a climate proving BSA compliance remains of paramount importance to all financial institutions. Treasury continues to rely on financial institutions to serve as the "front-line gatekeepers" for law enforcement efforts to safeguard the U.S. financial system from the abuses of financial crimes, including money laundering and terrorist financing. The federal regulatory agencies continue to rely on financial institutions to take "every reasonable step" to identify, minimize, and manage any risks that illicit financial activity may pose to the individual institution and the industry. Ongoing initiatives by the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN), and continued expansions of the federal examination procedures, reinforce the need to have a strong BSA program at your institution.

This two-day school covers in detail the issues and opportunities in the ever-expanding environment of the Bank Secrecy Act and reviews the entire realm of BSA from "A" to "Z". From decades old Currency Transaction Reporting (CTR) and various recordkeeping requirements, to institutional risk assessment, client due diligence (CDD), beneficial ownership expectations, and suspicious activity reporting, students from the novice appointee to the tenured BSA professional will find the discussions and interactions to be of great value.
