THE BIG PICTURE: TODAY'S COMPETITIVE BANKING ENVIRONMENT

April 8, 2020

Banking today is a challenging, competitive and ever-changing industry. What worked in the past may not work going forward. This challenging landscape requires leaders and managers who can create an environment in which their employees not only perform, but also grow and develop into the leaders of tomorrow. The market is crowded with multinational, regional and community banks, not to mention credit unions and non-bank competitors. What do bankers need to do to keep the confidence of the American people and their local communities? How can banks attract and retain the best and brightest talent available? The second half of the day will be spent reviewing the learning methodology of the Management Development Program, discussing the role of the mentor relationship, reviewing program expectations and more.

SESSION HIGHLIGHTS

Discuss critical issues facing the banking industry today, including:

- Reduction of the number of banks in the U.S.
- The impact of shrinking margins on bank profitability
- Impact of a changing bank environment
- Finding talented employees for your bank's continued success
- Changing customer expectations and how they are utilizing bank services today

THE HIGH-IMPACT OF EMOTIONALLY INTELLIGENT LEADERSHIP

April 9, 2020

Recent studies have shown emotional intelligence to be a key factor in leadership effectiveness, specifically, in a rapidly changing business environment. Emotionally intelligent managers create psychologically safe workplaces that lead to improved employee job satisfaction, retention, creativity, performance, and wellbeing. Emotionally intelligent leaders recognize and leverage emotions as a latent capacity and a reservoir of human capital to benefit their organizations and impact the bottom line. They have the self-awareness and skills to manage their own emotions as well as influencing others. Emotionally intelligent leaders motivate and respond to the needs of their staff through active and empathic listening and promoting high-trust relationships.

SESSION HIGHLIGHTS

- Explain what emotional intelligence is and how it is different from other intelligences
- Outline the key components of emotional intelligence
- Understand why emotionally intelligent leaders are more effective
- Explain the role of emotional intelligence in building high-trust relationships
- Describe the relationship among trust, commitment and achievement
- Use emotional intelligence to become a more effective leader

COMMUNICATING FOR RESULTS: CLEAR COMMUNICATION, LISTENING, AND BEING HEARD

May 6, 2020

Critical to the success of bank leaders and their organizations is how well they communicate. Understanding one's own limiting perceptions and blind spots is paramount to listening and speaking effectively. Listening skills impact job effectiveness and the quality of professional relationships. By becoming a better listener, productivity, the ability to influence, persuade and negotiate — all will improve thus helping to avoid conflict and misunderstandings.

Organizations demand constant feedback. Leaders who are skilled in handling difficult conversations exude confidence and respect. Job satisfaction is most impacted by how much individuals feel appreciated and valued for their work, rather than by their salaries or benefits. This session will introduce ways to help determine how to develop teams that feel appreciated and to master the art of successful communication.

SESSION HIGHLIGHTS

- How to build critical communication skills
- Become aware of perceptions and blind spots
- Expand listening skills to draw out critical conversations
- Learn effective day-to-day communication
- Deliver powerful and effective feedback to all levels of the organization
- Understand how team members feel valued and appreciated

THE PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT PROCESS: SELECTING, DEVELOPING AND RETAINING STARS

June 3, 2020

Team members need to understand how their work contributes to the overall success of the organization. By ensuring they understand this connection, the Performance Management Process (PMP) helps drive an organization's productivity and success. The manager plays a critical role in a successful performance management process: planning and encouraging mutual involvement and accountability, monitoring and providing proper direction, coaching for change, and evaluating results. Unfortunately, too often team members receive little or no feedback on their performance. When challenged with why this is occurring, managers often mention that they lack time; the "process" is too complicated; they have insufficient staff; or that they are concerned with employee morale. The PMP helps managers answer their employees' key questions related to performance, including: What do you want me to do? Why is it important? How do you want me to do it? How will I know if I am successful? What's in it for me?

SESSION HIGHLIGHTS

Improve your team by learning both the "what" and the "how" of:

- Getting the right person onboard
- Understanding the latest in employment law
- Interviewing do's and don'ts
- Motivating team members and beyond
- Coaching and contracting for change
- Four phases of the PMP

EFFECTIVE INTERPERSONAL CONFLICT AND PRINCIPLED NEGOTIATION

July 8, 2020

Effective managers are problem solvers whom employees can rely on to mitigate difficult situations. In today's banking environment, those with a positive pattern of negotiating ethical solutions quickly become the most valuable players in their organizations. This session is about recognizing patterns of conflict, defining the clash, and mustering the courage to leverage change and create solutions. Participants will be armed with the necessary tools to effectively negotiate to find solutions. This session includes no lecture as participants will be negotiating a live scenario-based conflict within the first 30 minutes. The remainder of the day will be dedicated to interactive banking-related challenges and diffusing common emergencies.

SESSION HIGHLIGHTS

In order to build your ability to produce results you need to:

- Understand the value and importance of productive conflict
- Understand intent vs. impact and its role in interpersonal conflict
- Practice a technique to overcome interpersonal conflict
- Identify your standard conflict strategies and their consequences
- Learn a new approach to negotiation that opens the possibility of both parties getting more of their needs met
- Practice using the new negotiation approach

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT AND CUSTOMER SERVICE: THE IMPORTANCE OF THEIR LINK TO BANK PROFITABILITY

August 5, 2020

There is an obvious disconnect between the service banks think they are providing and the reality of what customers experience. No banks appear on the lists of the top service providers in the United States. Yet when bank employees are asked to rate the customer service level of their bank they are consistently rating themselves highly. Banks aren't alone in this misperception. In the U.S. today, 80 percent of companies think they provide good service, but only 8 percent of their customers agree. But this disconnect can be especially harmful because we have limited opportunities to interact with our customers — many only visit their banks six times a year! Correcting these issues requires a workforce that is highly engaged. Research proves that companies with highly engaged employees beat the market and their peers when it comes to profitability. So how can bank managers engage their employees, produce excellent customer service and in turn enhance our profitability?

Learn how to take your bank's service to the next level by:

- Analyzing what top service providers do differently to make a significant impact in service quality
- Assessing a bank's service levels and comparing them to service leaders
- Identifying key service metrics
- Shopping and measuring what the competition is providing vs. these metrics
- Discussing the impact an engaged workforce has on a bank's profitability
